POLICE REPORT NEGRO PLANNED TO SHOOT WIFE

Borough police reported today that William Williams, South Washington street, in jail since his arrest Sunday on a charge of assault with intent to kill, had "confessed" that he had intended to shoot his wife, not Hubert Leslie Wise, of Breckenridge street, in the Williams home early Sunday morning.

At the Warner hospital, Wise's attending physician said that his condition today was "good." Pellets from a 12-gauge shotgun struck Wise in the right leg. It was at first feared that amputation might be necessary, but at the hospital today it was said that this would not be necessary.

No Date For Hearing

No time has been set for a hearing either for Williams or for Marion H. Lockett, cook at the SAE house here, who was charged Monday by borough police with a serious offense which they said provided the motive for the shooting.

Police said Lockett met Mrs. Williams at a dance here late in October and became friendly with her. Police said the former DeSoto City, Fla., negro told them that Mrs. Williams had represented herself as a single woman.

Police said Lockett was at the birthday-wedding anniversary party at the Williams home last Saturday night, but had left before the shooting, and that Mrs. Williams had also left the house. Their theory was that the shotgun had been accidentally discharged by Williams when he grabbed it, loaded it, and started after his wife and Lockett.

Identifies Checks Paid To Meyers As "Kickbacks"

Washington, Nov. 18 (AP)—Bleiot H. LaMarre told Senate investigators today that Aviation Electric company paid Maj. Gen. Bennett E. Meyers $17,972.14 in "salary" and "padding" from expense accounts in 1941 and footed a $10,000 bill for decorating the general's apartment.

The 35-year-old president of the Dayton, Ohio, concern previously had testified to a Senate war investigating committee that Meyers was the "real owner" and that he "kicked back" to the general all but $2,967.66 of his $31,050 salary as head of the company.

Meyers was wartime deputy chief of air force procurement (purchasing) and the senators are investigating his relations with companies which received war contracts.

Was Paid $1,000 Month
The Senate group recessed until afternoon (1:30 p. m., EST) without clearing up the question of whether there was any over-lapping in the various amounts LaMarre testified were paid to the general.

Under committee questioning, LaMarre identified three series of checks which he said went to the general:

1. A group aggregating $39,482.72, paid in 1940-41. LaMarre said this was repayment of $38,310.24 which the general advanced the concern plus $1,172.48 of interest.
2. A series amounting to $17,972.14 LaMarre said this was salary at $1,000 a month to the general less social security taxes plus $6,000 listed as travel and entertainment costs. He agreed when Senator Ferguson (R-Mich.) described the "entertainment" as "padding."
3. A $10,000 series to Neta Davis, in 1941, a Washington interior decorator. LaMarre said this was for decorating the general's Washington apartment and was listed on the company's books as "selling expense."

But later, LaMarre said both the travel-entertainment costs and "selling expenses" were listed as part of his salary when auditors protested they could not be justified.

LIONS DONATE $100 TO 'REC' FUND CAMPAIGN

On recommendation of its finance committee, the Gettysburg Lions club Monday evening voted a $100 contribution to the Gettysburg Recreation Association in its campaign for $7,500.

Kenneth P. Hull and Cloyd Shetter, who headed the club's activities committee that conducted the Friendship Train food campaign last week; and President Mahlon P. Hartzell, Sr., reported on the success of that undertaking which netted 10,450 pounds of food, estimated to be worth more than $1,000. The club gave a rising vote of thanks to the committee and all who helped contribute to the success of the undertaking and ordered an advertisement in today's issue of the Gettysburg Times extending their thanks to the community for its fine response.

Hear College Quartet

The club accepted a contribution of $10.83 from the Gettysburg Throwing company toward the cost of the food given last week.

The Lions were entertained by three selections by this quartet from Gettysburg college: Sidney Ehrhart, Alvin Rudisill, Donald Hemperly and Edgar Raffensperger. They sang without accompaniment: "O Lady Be Good," "Going Home" and "Kentucky Babe."

The Lions were also shown a Standard Oil company of Pennsylvania colored motion picture which included a number of Gettysburg shots.

President Hartzell presided with about 70 clubmen present. Group singing was led by Richard B. Shade. Plans were made to send a delegation to the Littlestown Lions club meeting Thursday evening.

FIREMEN SAVE HOUSE AND BARN

Firemen from four companies on Monday saved the barn and house at the W. G. Hartranft farm near Table Rock, while between 1,600 and 1,800 bushels of corn, a tractor and a number of other farm articles were destroyed in the flames that consumed a combination corn crib, implement shed and garage.

Hartranft received burns when he attempted to push a wagon out of the shed, and was treated by Dr. P. J. McGlynn, Biglerville.

Firemen from Aspers, Bendersville, Biglerville and Gettysburg responded to a general alarm put out when it was feared that both the barn and house might ignite. The wind blew the flames from the blazing structure against the barn, located across a road from the shed, and against the house.

The firemen used water from the Conewago creek in fighting the fire. According to reports by firemen the conflagration began when gasoline being put in the tractor by Hartranft exploded.

The Emma D. Kuhn Hat Shop, Chambersburg Street, will be closed all day Thursday.

Fails To Appear At Hearing; Is Jailed

Harry Moser, Railroad street, was late for an appointment Monday afternoon with Justice of the Peace John H. Baschore, and as a result, will face two charges when he is brought before the squire this afternoon.

A school law violation charge was filed against Moser last week for failure to have one of his children in school. Time of the hearing was set for 4 o'clock Monday afternoon.

The time arrived, but Moser did not. Squire Baschore asked borough police to hunt him up. They found him at home, in a condition which resulted in a charge of intoxication being placed against him. He was committed to jail to await this afternoon's hearings on both charges.

ROTARY HEARS LITTLE KNOWN LINCOLN FACTS

The story of how the committee set November 19 for the dedication of the Gettysburg National cemetery because that was the first date that Edward Everett would be free to come here to speak, and how Lincoln was asked to come, accepted, and then was asked to "make a few appropriate remarks" was told to Rotary Monday night at its regular meeting in the YWCA.

William B. Eckenrode, York, Lincoln scholar, whose grandfather's farm was in the midst of the battle here, told the story of Lincoln and the role Pennsylvania played in the life of the martyred president.

Lincoln first came to know Pennsylvania and Pennsylvanians during his term as Congressman from Illinois in 1847-48. The house where he roomed at Washington was also the home of five Pennsylvanians.

Attains Prominence

The plain lawyer from Illinois began to become a national figure after his famous "lost speech" in Illinois, Eckenrode said. "When the first national Republican convention was held Lincoln was proposed as a vice presidential candidate, receiving over 100 votes. When told about it Lincoln said, 'oh, that must have been one of the Massachusetts Lincolns.'"

"In 1858 Lincoln was a candidate for the Senate with Douglas as his opponent. Their debates made Lincoln well known throughout the nation, even though he lost the election. By 1859 Lincoln was leader of the Republican party in Illinois and by 1860 Illinois was proposing him as a candidate for the presidency. In May 1860, the Illinois Republican convention voted Lincoln the state's candidate for the presidency.

"But while that was the opinion of Illinois it was not the opinion of the country. Seward was the most (Continued on page 3)

CHEST DRIVE HERE IN 1948 IS APPROVED

A Community Chest for Gettysburg in 1948 came a step nearer realization Monday evening when representatives of most local agencies who go to the community annually in fund drives voted their approval of the Community Chest plan and authorized Dean W. E. Tilberg, temporary chairman of their group, to name a constitution committee.

The appointment of other committees would follow provisions of the constitution.

The group acted after a report from a local committee that investigated the Community Chest plans operated successfully in Chambersburg and Waynesboro and secured more information from national Community Chest headquarters in New York city.

Would Allow Benefits

Under plans discussed Monday evening at the YWCA building, organizations that are members of the Community Chest would be permitted to conduct benefits although membership drives would be frowned upon except in cases where specific benefits come to members and where constitutions could not be altered to eliminate the necessity of membership drives.

The members organizations would be permitted to include in their budget to the Chest a sum equal to that regularly derived from membership campaigns—provided the use of the money can be justified on a community basis.

The post voted to give $50 to the Gettysburg Recreation association and $60 to the Scotland home.

NEW APPEAL IN LEMMON AWARD

The State Workmen's Insurance Fund has appealed to the Superior court of Pennsylvania, sitting in Harrisburg, the case of Walter A. Lemmon, East Berlin, against the State Workmen's Insurance Fund, defendant, and the Pennsylvania Department of Highways, employer.

This was revealed in a certiorari received today by the Adams county prothonotary's office from the prothonotary in Dauphin county.

The Adams county court on October 31 handed down an opinion in which it held that the defendant should pay Lemmon $1,228.70 and further payments in installments.

The local court order was given after the State Insurance Fund had appealed to the Adams county court from an opinion of the Workmen's Compensation board that Lemmon should be paid these amounts.

The case is based on injuries received by Lemmon on August 7, 1945, when he suffered a cerebral hemorrhage as the result of strain in removing an iron signpost in East Berlin.

CHEST DRIVE

Girl Scouts, the Gettysburg Civic Nursing Association, the Adams County Crippled Children's society, and the Boy Scouts will join the Chest organization. The Warner hospital or its Auxiliary, or both, also may be expected to join, it was indicated Monday.

The tuberculosis society and the polio organization, along with the Red Cross, will not be members and the Gettysburg Fire company, although no final decision has yet been made, will probably follow the example set in many other communities and remain outside the Chest organization.

Unanimous Vote

One of the first steps of the Community Chest organization here will be to incorporate as a non-profit body. Its charter would be so drawn to permit it to conduct emergency drives in the community should the need arise. Its board of directors would include community leaders not directly connected with any of the local agencies as well as agency leaders, if the plan followed in nearby towns is used here.

Organizations whose drives now cover the entire county would set up regular organizations outside Gettysburg but would go to the Chest for its Gettysburg support, it was explained.

The vote to work for a Community Chest organization here in 1948 was unanimous. At an earlier meeting it was decided to give up any plans for a Community Chest drive here this year. The 1948 drive next October—timed with the national publicity—would raise funds for 1949 operations.

MORE DONATIONS

Nine more donors from the Ardentville area to the Adams County Girl Scouts' financial drive were announced today as follows: Ardentville National bank, $10; Mrs. Roy Heckenluber and Mrs. Arnold Orner each $5; Mrs. Marshall Longenecker $3; Mrs. Cameron Thomas, $2; Mrs. William Jennewine, Mrs. James Althoff, Mrs. Clifford Hartzell and Mrs. Edwin Schlosser each $1.

Few RAF Pilots Hit Enemy In War

Washington, Nov. 18 (AP)—Only 20 per cent of the small force of RAF fighter pilots in the battle of Britain ever shot down a German plane. Commander Noel Gaylor, of the U. S. Navy's special devices center, said today.

"The 80 per cent remaining fighter pilots hit nothing and served only to spread the return fire," he told a group of civilian scientists.

He said his figures came from analysis of films taken from the camera guns of RAF planes which engaged in the battle.

AUSTERITY IN CANADA

Ottawa, Nov. 18 (AP)—Canada embarked today upon a program of austerity in an effort to check the swift outward flow of United States dollars.

A series of decrees announced late last night and made effective at midnight directed restrictions and prohibitions on imports ranging from fruit to motor cars, curtailment of pleasure travel and heavy tax levies on durable goods made from materials shipped in from the United States.

2 EX-CONVICTS HELD IN MURDER

Neillsville, Wis., Nov. 18 (AP)—Two youthful ex-convicts were in jail today after surrendering to law enforcement officers to whom they related, apparently without remorse, their week-end orgy of killing and assault and their frantic attempt to evade capture.

The three-day pursuit of the young desperadoes by Wisconsin law enforcement officials ended yesterday when they surrendered to a sheriff's posse after a 12-hour siege at an isolated farm near this small north central Wisconsin community.

William Coyne, assistant district attorney of Dane county (Madison), said the two former Wisconsin reformatory inmates, Robert Winslow, 23, and Buford Sennett, 22, would be brought to Madison today. He said they would be charged with first degree murder in the slaying of a University of Wisconsin medical student and with the attack on a 19-year-old University of Michigan coed.

Sheriff Ray Kutsche of Clark county said the young ex-convicts had "freely admitted" the shooting of Carl L. Carlson, 25, of Cleveland Heights, Ohio, during a wild automobile ride Friday night. Miss Rosenblatt and Carlson had been picked up by the youths when they hitchhiked a ride to Carlson's home in Badger Village, near Madison.

Officials said the prisoners admitted throwing Carlson's body into the Wisconsin river from a bridge at Boscobel, in southwest Wisconsin. Miss Rosenblatt had escaped from the kidnap car Saturday near Hillsboro, 125 miles south of Neillsville, and related her story to officials.

42 KILLED IN BLAZE IN STORE

Christchurch, New Zealand, Nov. 18 (AP)—Forty-two persons were counted dead or missing today in a spectacular fire which destroyed the four-story Ballantyne Bros. department store, largest retail establishment in this south island city.

The bodies, of 28, including shoppers and employees, were recovered mostly from the area about the doors. A 29th person died in a hospital. Thirteen others were listed as missing.

Firemen, who made numerous dramatic rescues, brought the blaze under control within two hours, but it still was burning as darkness descended and the search for victims was suspended.

Eye-witnesses said they could see the bodies of additional victims scattered among the charred debris. The fire was heralded by a sudden burst of dense black smoke pouring from the roof and windows of the upper stories.

One child was among the victims. The flames shot quickly through the building, which was partly wood construction, trapping employees and shoppers on the upper floors at the height of the afternoon shopping rush. The store was in the center of the city's main shopping area.

Girl Vanishes Into Seattle Manhole

Seattle, Nov. 18 (AP)—A 5-year-old girl walked between her father and an aunt across a rain-swept residential street intersection last night plunged into an open sewer manhole and was swept away by the swift waters 12 feet below.

No immediate trace of the youngster, Sharon Irene Rothrock, was found in a block-by-block search of the sewer.

Dean Rothrock, the father, told police Sharon had begged to go along as he accompanied her aunt, Mrs. Ambrose Smith to a bus stop. Clutching their hands, the tot walked directly into the uncovered manhole which none of them had noticed in the darkness. In her sudden plunge the girl tore a ring from her father's hand.

The 20-inch manhole cover was found 12 feet away from the opening.

Reports from various members disclosed great interest on the part of the town's youngsters in the recreation center conducted in the Hotel Gettysburg annex. Among the activities so far underway are touch football leagues for the school youngsters, a junior canteen and a senior canteen at the annex. Scheduled to start in the near future is a basketball program for the Junior Police.

RENAISSANCE TO PLAY HERE NEXT MONDAY

The Renaissance, one of the leading Negro professional basketball teams in the country, has been booked by Manager Dick Thompson to meet the Gettysburg Merchants, on the Gettysburg high school court Monday evening, November 24.

The Rens are captained by William "Pop" Gates and have such giants as Dill King, 6 ft. 5 in.; Hank DeZonie, 6 ft. 6 in.; Jim Uary, 6 ft. 4 in.; George Crowe, 6 ft. 3 in.; and Vic Hansen, 6 ft. 2 in. Of smaller stature but of equally clever ability are Sonny Wood, Eddie Youncer and Tom Sealy.

The present team is a carry-over from the old Renaissance who played here years ago against the Gettysburg Fleet-Wings. This year marks the 25th consecutive year the Renaissance has fielded a team and the team this season is expected to rank on a par with its championship outfits of other years.

Several lads who will perform for the Gettysburg college team this year will be in the Lineup next Monday. Bud Bochner, 6 ft. 3 in., is scheduled to be at the pivot position with George Gorman and Bob O'Brien, forwards, and Jack Dorsey and Joe Howard, guards. O'Brien transferred to Gettysburg college from Muhlenberg and will be ineligible for varsity competition until next season.

As a preliminary game the Stanton-Dorsey Legion quintet of the Adams County league will meet the McSherrystown Knights of Columbus at 7:30 o'clock.

Admission to the double-header will be $1 for adults and 50c for children. Tickets are now on sale at the Varsity Barber shop, American Legion home, Hankey grocery store, West Gettysburg inn, and Thompson's restaurant.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, Nov. 18 (AP)—Joe McCarthy never has quite succeeded in living down that tag of "push button manager" that Jimmy Dykes hung on him, but who ever thought he could push a button to start the trade machine working so quickly?

Vern Stephens and Jack Kramer should be a big help to the Red Sox in the 1948 pennant race. Speaking for the Army coaching staff, Andy Gustafson says, "we think Arnold Galiffa is going to be a great quarterback before he gets through at West Point." Then he adds, "we think Penn's Chuck Bednarik is one of the greatest centers we ever have seen." Maxie Doucens, the New Orleans lightweight who has made a great record on the west coast, has cooked up the idea of taking some California cormorants back to Louisiana and training them to fish for him. Maxie hopes some day to own a large fleet of fishing boats.

TIME OUT

Ever hear of a football game that stretched over two months? Well, here it is. On Oct. 31, a negro high school team from Bluefield, W. Va., started by bus to play a night game at Hinton, 40 miles away. Halfway there, they encountered a washout and the bus returned. Hinton officials, advised by phone, told the Bluefield coach to bring his boys by a longer route. The game finally got under way at 11 p. m. and finished about one a. m., the following day, Nov. 1.

Red Rolfe, the reformed Yale coach who heads the Detroit Tigers farm system, almost called the turn on the Yale-Princeton football game. Wesley "Jug" Luther, the unknown from Rugby, North Dakota, teachers who turned up as National grid scoring leader with 112 points, hails from Rugby, N. C., and undoubtedly he was aided by a few linemen who can soccer.

Lou Little, Columbia coach: "The ability to master mind a team from the bench is greatly over-rated. Generally the player you send in is a lot better than the play."

STEPHENS DEAL AIDS WILLIAMS

Boston, Nov. 18 (AP)—Let down hard so many times by six-figure deals not even the most rabid of the Red Sox rooters hailed the seven-two trade with the St. Louis Browns for Junior Stephens and Jack Kramer as anything slightly resembling a harbinger of the 1948 American league pennant.

But even the most lukewarm agreed the acquisition of the long-bashing Stephens would do much to boost Ted Williams back into the 400-batting stratosphere. "Williams never again will draw 161 bases on balls. They'll have to pitch to him with Stephens coming up next," was the consensus of the fans on the street.

Even if no cash was involved and, according to the second-guessers, Yawkey gave from $50,000 to $250,000 to boot, this wholesale deal could help both the disappointed Red Sox and the lowly Browns.

It was no secret that high-salaried Stephens and Kramer had front office trouble in St. Louis. Both have gone on record as being "very happy" about getting an opportunity to play for the Red Sox under McCarthy.

And chances are at least 50-50 that the Browns got one or more stars in the making when General Manager Joe Cronin turned over infielder Eddie Pellagrini, Catcher Roy Partee and such promising Louisville farm hands as pitchers Jim Wilson and Al Widmar and outfielder Pete Lawden while promising two more unnamed players for future delivery.

BUY SCRANTON TEAM

Scranton, Pa., Nov. 18 (AP)—The Boston American league baseball club has purchased for an undisclosed price the holdings of directors of the Scranton team of the Eastern league—a Red Sox farm club since 1939. The Boston offer was accepted by the Scranton team officials at a meeting here yesterday with the deal to be completed formally later in the week at Boston, according to Jack Davis, Scranton team president.

It is believed that far more fish are caught by other fish than by man.

Rains On Program

This will be followed by the address of the day by Secretary Livingston, "The Battle Hymn of the Republic," played by the Bigville band, and Rains' recitation of Lincoln's Gettysburg Address. Rev. Floyd A. Carroll, pastor of the Methodist church, will pronounce the benediction.

Mr. Rains will arrive in Gettysburg about 3 o'clock. His only appearance, because of other engagements, will be at the cemetery.

Rains, now a man in his 50's, has played many important roles in stage, screen and radio plays. He was born in London, and was call boy, carpenter, master mechanic, electrician, property man, treasurer and company manager on the stage before his first appearance "on the boards."

After appearing in several plays in England, Australia and America, Rains enlisted in the London Scottish regiment during World War I. He was gassed at Vimy Ridge, transferred to a Bedford regiment and emerged from the war with a captain's commission.

Rapid Rise On Stage

The resumption of his stage career was marked by a succession of important roles. He appeared in America in "The Constant Nymph" the success of which was directly a forerunner to his becoming the Theater Guild's leading character actor.

His appearance here was arranged through the cooperation of Sydney J. Poppay, manager of the Majestic and Strand theaters.

He has appeared in the movies with Bette Davis, Ingrid Bergman, Vivien Leigh and other screen queens.

Among his notable pictures are Anthony Adverse, Stolen Holiday, Sons of Liberty, Saturday's Children, The Sea Hawk, King's Row, Casablanca, Passage to Marseille, Mr. Skeffington, and others.

Resume Practice For Cornell Game

Philadelphia, Nov. 18 (AP)—Pennsylvania's big Red and Blue football team will resume practice Wednesday in preparation for the traditional Thanksgiving Day clash with Cornell.

Coach George Munger gave his boys two days off to recuperate from bruises received in the 7-7 deadlock with Army.

Penn will be shooting for its first unbeaten season in 39 years in the closing game with Cornell here, but Munger had admonished his gridders that Cornell is usually "up" when playing Penn.

MANSFIELD IS TEACHER CHAMP

Philadelphia, Nov. 18 (AP)—The Mansfield football team today holds the mythical Pennsylvania Teachers' college gridiron crown but the standings found two elevens holding better records—West Chester and Slippery Rock.

The situation evolved around a long-established conference rule that a team must play at least four league games to win the title. Mansfield ended its season with a record of four wins, one tie and one defeat, the latter a 21-14 loss to Lock Haven last Saturday.

West Chester and Slippery Rock wound up their seasons with three wins each and no ties or losses, both shy one game of the required four league games to claim the crown.

Upset Champions

Lock Haven also laid claim to a mythical title—that of upset champion of the teacher circuit. The Bald Eagles outplayed Mansfield 13 first downs to three but had to depend on a final period tally to take the game.

Bloomburg finished in second spot in the teacher standing behind Mansfield with five victories and two defeats while Shippensburg came in at show place with five wins, two losses and one tie.

Only one league game remains—that which will match Lock Haven with California Teachers' at Lock Haven this Saturday.

In other games over the past weekend Shippensburg and Indiana battled to a 6-6 tie and West Chester squeezed past Millersville 6-0 to finish undefeated in nine starts.

May Form Conference

There have been indications that an official conference may be formed before the start of the 1948 Teachers' college grid season with the rule prevailing that each team must play four league contests to be eligible for title consideration.

West Chester's Joe Carozzo retained scoring honors among the Teacher college backs as well as that for the entire state with 78 points, followed by Russ Carlson of Indiana with 49, Dave Kurtz of California with 48 and Joe Harrington of Mansfield with 43.

goal of 250 should be reached within the next several months, Mrs. Pennington said.

In addition to the 135 already sent a large number of additional boxes are almost ready for shipment. Littlestown high school expects to have 12 boxes completed by Saturday and Hoffman's school expects to have three boxes filled by the end of the week. Franklin township consolidated is filling 12 boxes and Gettysburg high school is planning to fill 20 gift packages. Other schools throughout the county are working on the project. In addition a number of schools have not as yet been contacted in the annual Junior Red Cross drive and these schools will probably begin work in the early future, Mrs. Pennington said.

Schools Participating
Among the schools that had boxes in the first shipment and the number of boxes filled by each school were: Pitzers, 2; McCleary, 2; McIlhenny, 1; Round Top, 3; Church, 2; Glenwood, 2; Belmont, 1; Boyd, 1; Two Taverns, 2; White Run, 1; Good Intent, 2; Hunterstown, 2; Hampton, 2; New Chester, 1; Round Hill, 2; Whitcomb's View, 1; Mechanicsville, 1; Lower Tract, 2; Victory, 2; Valley, 1; St. Francis Xavier, 6; High Street, 14; Biglerville grade, 6; Biglerville high school, 5; Delone, 4; Midway, 6; State Road, 2; York Springs grade, 5; York Springs high school, 8; East Berlin grade and high school, 7; Littlestown grades, 14; Pleasant Grove, 2; Clearview, 1; Bendersville, 2; Locust Grove, 1; Blackberry, 1; Miller's, 1; Sand Hill, 6; Meade school, 14; Orrtanna, 3, and Abbottstown, 4.

A turkey, chicken and duck dinner was served in their honor by the children, at which time they received many gifts.

NEW PROBE OF FIGHT GAME IN GOTHAM OPENED

By JOE REICHLER

New York, Nov. 18 (AP)—The New York County grand jury, under the direction of the district attorney's office, for the second time within a year, stepped in to investigate the city's boxing situation today.

The inquiry will be into last Friday night's Madison Square Garden fight in which Billy Fox of Philadelphia was awarded a T.K.O. over Jake Lamotta of New York in the fourth round of a scheduled 10-round.

Coincident with the announcement by District Attorney Frank S. Hogan yesterday, Col. Eddie Egan, chairman of the State Athletic (Boxing) commission, proclaimed that he had ordered Sol Straus, promoter of the Twentieth Century Sporting club, to withhold the purses of Fox and Lamotta pending an independent investigation by the commission. They were to have been paid $23,910.22 each from the gross receipts of the $102,528 from 18,340 fans.

Newspaper Criticism

Specifically the two separate investigations are the result of adverse newspaper criticism.

Hogan said that the Rackets bureau of his office, which had been inquiring into boxing and undercover managers earlier this year, will do the investigating and that any evidence developed will be turned over to the same grand jury which heard witnesses in the alleged $100,000 bribe offered middleweight champion Rocky Graziano early this year. Graziano was suspended in New York before he won the title from Tony Zale in Chicago.

Egan, who immediately after the fight said he thought both fighters gave sincere efforts, issued a statement saying "at present there is no local evidence that the contest was not honestly fought by both boxers to the best of their ability. The commission will investigate the circumstances and make its determination after such an investigation."

In Philadelphia, Frank (Blinky) Palermo, manager of Fox declared that he would welcome an investigation and asserted that his fighter's actions Friday "were above criticism." Fox "fought a smart fight and he won on his merits," he said.

SAYS RUSSIA IS PREPARING TO WAGE WAR

Washington, Nov. 18 (AP)—Rep. Dirksen (R-Ill.), saying "The Soviet Union is feverishly preparing for military war," called today for a ban on exports "which strengthen the economic and military power of Communism."

"The cold war can be quickly transformed into a hot war," Dirksen declared in a personal report on more than a month of study in Germany. He said he found that "in many quarters one can secure an even money wager that war is in the offing."

Dirksen headed a combined armed services-appropriations committee group which returned from Europe last month.

"Germany Is Key"

In his report he accused Russia of ruthlessly trying to Communize Germany and all Europe and said that for the United States "to abandon Europe now is to abandon freedom, not only for them but for ourselves."

The "very simple question" before the nation, he said, is this: "Do we dare gamble the equivalent of two or three months of the cost of a four-year war to win the peace?"

Dirksen said "Germany is the key to the Communization of the entire continent of Europe." Once it falls, he said, "France and Italy will be easy" and Russia then will have bridgeheads on "the rimlands of Europe."

To combat the spread of Communism, Dirksen said, German industry must be revitalized. At the same time France and Poland must be assured "We do not intend to build a level or type of industry which might one day be converted into a war potential."

ROTARY HEARS

formidable of the candidates. But Pennsylvania was opposed to Seward and when the convention was held in Chicago Pennsylvania casts its votes for Lincoln on the second ballot.

Lincoln And Stevens

"Other states followed Pennsylvania's example and Lincoln received the nomination."

Eckenrode said that "the aims of Stevens and Lincoln were substantially the same, but Lincoln believed it better to move slower than Stevens thought necessary. Actually Stevens cleared the ground where Lincoln sowed the seed."

Pennsylvania's Governor Curtin was one of Lincoln's foremost supporters and Pennsylvania's soldiers were in the forefront of the Union forces, Eckenrode pointed out. There were 34,530 Pennsylvania soldiers at Gettysburg.

"The Gettysburg battlefield got its start when David Wills saw the conditions under which the soldiers were buried here. He wrote to Governor Curtin and Curtin appointed him as a sort of governor's agent to secure land for a cemetery."

Asked for Brief Talk

"The committee in charge of the dedication sought one of the greatest orators of the time, Edward Everett, to speak. November 19 was the first date he was available. Then invitations were sent out to notables. Among them was one to Lincoln. When he accepted some members of the committee felt it would be inappropriate to have the President here without having him speak. So a second letter was sent asking him to 'make a few appropriate remarks.' That letter was sent November 2."

"Lincoln apparently was motivated by a desire to appear well here and by a desire to overcome some vicious remarks that had been made that he appeared indifferent to the suffering of soldiers."

"He spent much time in preparation for the talk, and apparently made some rough drafts at Washington. When he arrived here the day before the dedication he seemed to be thinking about the speech. On the evening of November 18 he told David Wills, 'I want to do a bit of writing' as he retired to his room. Later he left the room and went over to the house where Seward was staying to confer with him, taking with him two sheets of manuscript which it is believed contained the Gettysburg address in a rough form. He probably finished the speech before retiring."

Lincoln Kept Waiting
"The next day the parade was an hour late and Lincoln waited patiently on horseback for it to begin. After he arrived at the cemetery he had to wait a half hour until Everett returned from a visit to the battlefield before the ceremony began."

"Estimates on the size of the crowd varied. The New York Times said 15,000 were present. Other estimates varied up to 50,000."

"Lincoln left Gettysburg convinced his speech was a failure."

Fifty-five members and guests attended the session. The speaker was introduced by Dr. Frederick Tilberg. The president, Dr. C. Harold Johnson presided.

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS
THE LONELY HEART

I believe that all of us get lonely at times, no matter what our social standing or unit of fortune. We get lonely for loved ones long gone, for the hearing of their wise counsel and their laughter, and for their rare understanding. We get lonely for honest and sincere appreciation. Mere money, or good material fortune, cannot assuage the loneliness that comes to us all. Lincoln was one of the loneliest figures who ever ruled a great nation, yet without bitterness or complaint, Napoleon, after having almost succeeded as the conqueror of Europe, died in loneliness upon a bleak and chilly rock of an island.

Scattered all over the earth, in homes and hospitals, are those who are lonely—wounded ones, shut-ins, and many in the throes of despair, most of whom, however, accept in rare spirit their loneliness. For thirty years these simple talks have been written, largely with just such folks in mind—hoping and praying to give them a lift, to enforce their hope and to give substance to their faith.

All through my life, from its humblest of origin, I have been greatly blest. Blessed with a noble father, mother, and sisters, and to this day blessed in my own home and family—yet I often get lonely. It seems to be the inheritance of us all. And so to be faced with solitude and faith!

Washington got lonely at Valley Forge, and went out into the open to pray for courage and the reinforcement that could only come from a higher Power than that which he owned. Is it any wonder that he succeeded in giving independence to a great nation, thus becoming "the Father of His Country"? No words are adequate to describe the loneliness of thousands of soldiers who await their fate upon a field of battle.

What are we to do, to whom are we going to turn, when loneliness takes such possession of us? Well, we have that inner fortitude that we may have banked throughout the years. We have the remembrance of love that has been showered upon us in other days. We may have a friend or two to whom we may turn for guidance out of the dark. And we have God, the Father! In His loneliness the Son of Man went unto a high mountain—to pray.

Tomorrow Mr. Adams will talk on the subject: "Lessons."

NOVEMBER
Against the dullness of November skies,
Winds moaning in our ears,
The mark of death which on the cold earth lies,
How lovely May appears!

Heads down we walk into the driving rain
And brave the wind's sharp bite,
Forgetting June will shortly come again,
With all its gay delight.

November trees stand rigid, bare of leaf,
Perhaps that we may learn
That happiness may follow after grief,
And brighter days return.

BLAST KILLS 5,
INJURES FIFTY
IN RESTAURANT

Nampa, Idaho, Nov. 18 (AP)—An explosion ripped apart a restaurant-tavern building here Saturday night, killing five and injuring 50.

The Nampa city council and the police and fire departments were prepared to launch investigations of the disaster which earlier had been attributed by Fire Chief L. T. Lessinger to an explosion of a gas range in the restaurant.

At Sunday, 26 persons remained in Nampa hospitals after eight victims were released during the day.

Rescue activities stopped Sunday when Lessinger said officials had determined beyond reasonable doubt that no bodies remained in the shambles of the two-story brick and frame building.

Patrons of the Forbidden Palace restaurant and the Alibi inn were jolted by the blast as flying bricks and timbers were scattered among them.

Persons along the bar at the inn were reported to have escaped serious injury. The second floor collapsed on customers in booths at the opposite side of the room.

Capture Watchman
During Robbery

Philadelphia, Nov. 18 (AP)—A 60-year-old watchman was captured Sunday night by two robbers who took $10,000 worth of cloth from a loading platform and then drove him about in a stolen truck before leaving him locked in the empty vehicle.

The watchman, George Hess, was discovered near exhaustion and badly beaten while his cries attracted the attention of a passing motorist.

After being treated at Frankford hospital for a possible skull fracture Hess told detectives that the two robbers knocked on the door of a warehouse where he is employed, asking to use the telephone.

When Hess admitted the pair, he said, they forced him into a truck owned by the W. T. Cowan Motor Freight, Inc.

Hess was forced to ride several miles in the rear of the truck with the load of stolen cloth before the men stopped, loaded the cloth into another truck, beat him and locked him in the truck.

Urges Development
Of Alaska By U. S.

Haverford, Pa., Nov. 18 (AP)—William E. Warne, assistant secretary of the interior, said today the United States must "occupy and develop" Alaska on a bigger scale for the sake of national defense.

The interior department, Warne added, may ask congress next spring to set up "an adequate group settlement program" for the territory.

That program and all efforts at Alaskan promotion he said in an address prepared for delivery at Haverford college, will be "based upon the assumption that the territory will become one of the United States just as soon as its people, its resources and its pace of development permit it to assume the obligations of statehood."

Absentee control and the dispute over Indian land-ownership rights are major obstacles to Alaska's growth, Warne declared.

OPERATION SUCCESSFUL

Baltimore, Nov. 18 (AP)—An operation to remove bone chips from the throwing arm of Joe DiMaggio, New York Yankee outfielder, was pronounced a success at Johns Hopkins hospital last night by Dr. George E. Bennett. Bennett said he also removed a lesion from the limb. Hospital officials said DiMaggio will remain here for a week or ten days for observation.

MANHATTAN EDITOR
By Gene Gleason
AP Newsfeatures

Chapter 4
Jean's first day of work at Trans-American News moved too swiftly to permit her any reflection on Charles Dawson's reported hostility toward her.

"Excuse me if I'm a little curt right now," Al Davis, the short, dapper, bushy-haired day editor told her as he handed her a file of stories that had moved out of the office in the last 24 hours. "But I'm rather tied up with a dock strike, an up-town murder and a two-alarm fire in the Bronx. Read these stories over to get your bearings; I'll put you to work when you've finished."

Jean had scarcely finished reading the news report when Davis grasping a cradle phone in one hand, called out:

"Jean, here's Harry Hawkins with an obit on Jess Darlington, the Broadway producer. He'll dictate it."

Clamping on a telephone headset, Jean listened with a little tingle of the spine to Hawkins' voice—a smooth, resonant baritone. She tried to imagine the man behind that well-modulated voice; the man whose generous praise of a reporter he had never seen had given her the job in New York she had always dreamed about and worked toward.

But there was no time for introductions just then. She could only listen as Hawkins' pleasant voice dictated the obituary, typing almost as fast as he spoke. She noted with the trained reporter's selective judgment that his story had all the essential facts, yet the same polish and flavor that had made his Broadway columns famous. When he had finished the dictation, Hawkins asked:

"Who's this? I don't think I've spoken to you before."

"Saunders," Jean answered hastily as she saw Davis gesturing toward her. "Sorry, she said hastily. 'The boss is giving me the summons: we're awfully busy. Goodbye.'"

In rapid succession, she was assigned to check the condition of a major movie star, ill at a private Manhattan hospital; to locate a library clipping on a recent anti-trust prosecution, and to verify the spelling of an obscure Arabian place-name in an oil-lease story.

"There's a possible settlement coming in the dock strike and our regular labor reporter is tied up with a transit workers meeting," Davis told Jean, while he shoved a sheaf of dock strike story clippings across the desk. "Go over to the U. S. conciliator's office on Ninth Avenue—here's the address—and read these on the way. If you get something big, phone it in right away for a bulletin."

Jean reached the Conciliator's office to find about 25 other reporters already on watch. She arranged to use a phone in a neighboring office if there should be a major break in the story.

She returned to the reporters room, quizzing one of the older men on the background of the strike. With unexpected suddenness, the conciliator stepped into the room.

"Gather around, boys," he announced. "Here's what you came for." A storm of incisive questions broke over his head at once, but he answered each as tersely as possible while Jean and the others huddled around, scribbling notes on copy paper and notebooks.

At the earliest strategic moment, Jean and every other reporter broke simultaneously for the door, racing for about a dozen phones. Dropping all pretense of glamor, Jean sprinted for the phone, just nosing out an afternoon paper reporter.

"Hang on," Davis said when her call went through. "I'll give you Bart Williamson. Dictate a bulletin and keep it rolling. Call me back when the story's cleaned up."

Williamson, an old hand, typed the three-line bulletin at dictation speed. Jean followed it with terms of the strike settlement, wage raises, union ratification plans and arrangements for the withdrawal of pickets. When she finished the dictation, perspiration was pouring down her face and her makeup looked like the main arena of a smear campaign.

She patched the damage temporarily, and Davis was on the phone again:

"Shoot right over to the Waldorf-Astoria for a bar association luncheon. Several speakers, but General Watson should be the lead. He's just back from Germany. Most of them will have texts. Call in what you can get and we'll hold the story for release until you hear them speak." He paused. "Nice job on the dock settlement; we were

A GAS SHORTAGE
THIS WINTER?
PROBABLY!

Severe Cold Weather Doubles the Demand—
The unprecedented demand for natural gas for home heating, cooking and water heating keeps present gas supply lines loaded close to capacity even in normal winter weather. When a severe cold wave strikes, this normal demand by domestic users jumps to nearly double. Gas pressures in the lines could easily drop to dangerously low levels this winter.

There's Plenty of Gas—But We Can't Get It to You—
There is plenty of natural gas at the source, in the abundant gas fields of Texas and Oklahoma, and even in the nearby wells of Pennsylvania, Ohio and West Virginia. But gas can't be delivered in boxes, nor by parcel post. It takes many miles of great steel or iron pipe . . . and pipe, today, is an extremely scarce item. This scarcity of pipe and other vital equipment has considerably hindered our expansion program.

You Can Do Much to Help Prevent a Shortage—
The cooperation of all our customers will help to prevent a critical shortage. If everyone uses just a little less gas—the aggregate savings will amount to millions of cubic feet . . . and can actually help to prevent gas pressures from passing the danger point.

1. Please don't use your gas range to heat your kitchen.
2. Do your washing on some other day than Monday.
3. Set your furnace thermostat at 68°—still lower at night.
4. Shut off rooms not in use—particularly attics and second floor bedrooms.

three minutes ahead of the opposition.
The luncheon was a sumptuous feast which Jean, phoning in excerpts from the texts of various speakers, had no time left to sample. The dishes were cleared away when the speaking started. Jean listened to all of them, knowing that any one might discard his text and produce real news if some audience response set them on an unexpected tack. This time, though, the deviations were slight. Jean phoned them in and returned to the office after stopping for a brief snack at a lunch counter.

"We're still swamped," Davis greeted her. His hair was mussed, his face criss-crossed with carbon-paper streaks. He threw her a complicated five-page story on a graft investigation. "See if you can cut it to 150 words for the national wire."

Jean examined the story, cudgeling her brains to compress it into a tenth of its present length. She managed it, after 20 minutes of torture, writing it so tight that she almost felt she had wound up the commas like yo-yo-strings and squeezed the hyphens into periods.

"Good," said Davis crisply when she turned it in. He scrutinized the copy carefully and crossed out a modifying clause with a stroke of a thick black pencil. "Think we can save a few more words, though."

Jean, amazed, saw that the story could be cut even closer than she had done, yet remain complete. Davis looked up at her then, giving her a wide, genuinely appreciative smile.

"Say," he said in a mild tone that carried complete conviction, "I think you'll do."

The unprecedented demand for natural gas for home heating, cooking and water heating keeps present gas supply lines loaded close to capacity even in normal winter weather. When a severe cold wave strikes, this normal demand by domestic users jumps to nearly double. Gas pressures in the lines could easily drop to dangerously low levels this winter.

There is plenty of natural gas at the source, in the abundant gas fields of Texas and Oklahoma, and even in the nearby wells of Pennsylvania, Ohio and West Virginia. But gas can't be delivered in boxes, nor by parcel post. It takes many miles of great steel or iron pipe . . . and pipe, today, is an extremely scarce item. This scarcity of pipe and other vital equipment has considerably hindered our expansion program.

You Can Do Much to Help Prevent a Shortage—
The cooperation of all our customers will help to prevent a critical shortage. If everyone uses just a little less gas—the aggregate savings will amount to millions of cubic feet . . . and can actually help to prevent gas pressures from passing the danger point.

EXTRA SHELVES ADD SPACE FOR HOUSE PLANTS

Finding suitable window space for the house plants is a major problem with many gardeners and plant lovers. To increase the available space one or two extra shelves may be provided, if this does not interfere with the window effect. When house plants which require much light are placed where they receive sunlight during the day and also have the benefit of a near-by electric lamp every evening startling results will often be obtained.

Because our house plants come from the four corners of the earth they show definite conditions, and they should be grouped in such a way that each one finds a suitable place. When the gardener knows which plants belong to each group the problem almost solves itself, if the plant assortment is more or less balanced.

It is well to start with the group requiring the least winter light. These may go in windows facing a court or blocked by near-by buildings or evergreen trees. The window gardener will find in this classification quite a few popular varieties of easy culture. There is the Chinese evergreen, or Aglaonema, with its shiny bright green leaves. This is often grown in water, but soil is much more satisfactory if permanence is wanted.

Sturdy Foliage Plants
The asparagus fern (Sprenger) also can get along with a minimum of light during its winter resting season; so can Aspidistra elatior and the snakeplant or bowstring hemp (which is equally well known by its botanical name Sansevieria). The jade plant, Crassula arborescens, is another reliable performer under such conditions. Also Ficus elastica (rubber tree), ivy, screw pine (Pandanus utilis), the various forms of Philodendron, Wandering Jew (Tradescantia fluminensis) and the purple-leaved Wandering Jew (T. zebrina pendula).

The next group requires light in abundance but does not need sunlight. A north window is ideal for its representatives. It is here that ivy growing in water will perform best. Foliage begonias also like this light condition and so do the Spiderplant (Shorophyllum) and the Grape Ivy (Cissus rhombifolia). Coleus, Grevillea, Dieffenbachia, Dracaena and Pothos add further variety to the display.

Among the ferns we have the Boston Holly, Pteris and Bird's Nest varieties. Add to these the delightful African Violet (Saintpaulia), Saxifrage sarmientosa, scented-leaved Geraniums (Pelargonium) and the Pick-a-back Plant (Tolmiea menziesii). Of course, all those of the first group also do well with north light.

Flowering Plants Need Sun
By the time all these have found their places there is likely to be ample room for the kinds which must have as much winter sun as possible. As a general rule all winter-flowering plants must have full sun for as long a time as possible, and that means choosing a south window. There are quite a few foliage plants which need sunlight plentifully during the winter. Most of these are desert plants that come from the warm parts of the world where they grow without interference from trees and large shrubs. Christmas Cactus, Crassula, Euphorbia, Kleinia, Sempervivum (Hen and Chickens), Mesembryanthemum and Sedum make up the majority of the readily available sorts.

Winter-flowering bulbs, including Amaryllis and Calla as well as Tulips, Narcissus and Hyacinths, are in need of much winter sunlight, especially when they are in flower. The well known Shrimp Plant (Beloperone guttata) is another popular subject requiring ample light. Geraniums in bloom will soon stop flowering if the light intensity is reduced. This is also true of the flowering Begonias belonging to the semperflorens and gracilis types.

Garden Activities For Late November

Continue planting tulips, daffodils and other hardy spring-flowering bulbs.

Newly planted trees should be staked securely so that snow and winter winds will not move them. Also, burlap should be wrapped around the newly planted trees from the ground up to the first branches to prevent sun scald, drying of the bark or attack from borers.

Prepare mulching material to be put on after the ground has frozen hard. Excellent mulching materials are peat moss, straw or hay, tobacco stems and pine needles.

Mulch strawberry plants to protect them from winter killing. Any kind of straw or hay is suitable. Leaves may be placed between the rows but not on the plants.

Rose planting may continue as long as the soil is workable. A half bushel of soil heaped lightly over rose plants just before the arrival of freezing weather, covering at least three buds, will provide sufficient protection over the winter.

The planting of crabapple, apple, pear and quince trees may be continued until freezing weather.

Start saving wood ashes from the fireplace, as they can serve in spring as a soil improver.

After hardy chrysanthemums have finished flowering, cut them back to within six inches of the ground.

Inspect House Plants

Give your house plants periodic inspection for insect pests. Cleanliness is important to house plants. Those with glossy foliage need a weekly sponge bath to remove the dust which accumulates on them. Pay particular attention to the undersides of the leaves because the greater number of breathing pores are located there. Plants with fuzzy and hairy leaves must not be sponged; instead, a fine spray of water given frequently will refresh them.

Keep the surface of the soil in house plants lightly cultivated.

Proper Storage Conserves Food

Newark, Del., Nov. 18.—Proper storage of garden produce will help conserve food supplies during the winter months, and November is a good time to plan for it, Eugene P. Brasher, extension horticulturist for the University of Delaware, reminds. The world food shortage today makes it specially important to save as much home-grown food as possible, he adds.

According to Mr. Brasher, the pit or mound is the simplest type of construction and keeps root vegetables—carrots, beets, turnips, persimmons—very well. Vegetables are placed on three to four inches of straw in a level, well drained place and are covered with an additional three to four inches of straw and enough soil to maintain a constant temperature.

For most home gardeners the basement is probably the most logical storage place. Keep the storeroom separate from the rest of the basement, with a window to provide fresh air. A space eight by ten feet will provide storage space for the average family.

Carrots, potatoes, turnips and pears can be kept in basement storage. Sweet potatoes, squash and pumpkins may be stored in the furnace room if only one room is available. Cabbage should not be stored indoors because its odor will permeate the entire house.

Wanted: More Gardens—Pennsylvanians are asked to join in the great national objective of 20,000,000 home gardens in 1948. In view of the world food situation, emphasis again will be placed on growing as many vegetables at home as possible. Extension vegetable specialists of the Pennsylvania State college heartily endorse the plan.

Beekeeping Is Necessary

Unfortunately too many American farmers, orchardists and gardeners have considered bees solely in terms of honey production. And while honey is one of the oldest foods man has eaten, and while it is perhaps the most healthful form of all known sugars, the bee's vital work in pollinating many kinds of fruit, vegetable and forage plants may prove worth as much as twenty times the value of its annual crop of honey.

Among the first penalties farmers of the United States had to pay for their abandonment of beekeeping as a sideline was the failure of red clover. How much the American people have unknowingly paid in terms of human health by using cane and beet sugars in the place of honey will never be fully appraised because we still adamantly refuse to face the dietary truth that refined sugars are detrimental to human health while honey is a health-protecting and health-building sweet.

Bees, both the wild bumblebee and the domesticated honey bee, are needed to carry pollen among the various clovers, alfalfa, several vegetables and all the fruits. For several years the editor has been urging readers, both rural and urban who have suitable space and potential facilities, to start at least a small apiary. Two or three hives should be sufficient for a beginning to gain experience. This community contribution to fruit, forage and vegetable growing would be immeasurable.

The 1947 crop of honey will total around 210 million pounds, with an average of about 35 pounds per hive. To appreciate the latent possibilities in this old but poorly developed industry, it is interesting to recall that Moses Quimby, often called the father of American beekeeping, produced approximately 500 pounds of extracted honey from one hive in a single season. At the current retail price of honey—40 to 55 cents a pound—the potential revenue from scientific beekeeping is amazing. Too, the national average production per hive is a sad commentary on our lack of beekeeping knowledge.

Passage of the Pure Food law early in the present century gave beekeeping an impetus which American farmers failed to accept. Until that law was enacted consumers hesitated to buy extracted honey for fear it was adulterated with cheap sugars. But the Pure Food law rescued honey from this suspicion and enabled beekeepers to extract the honey and thereby use the same comb over and over. This saving of bee-labor and time offered a tremendous opportunity to the honey-producing industry which was not recognized or grasped.

American consumers should be buying and using at least 60 pounds of honey per capita in the interest of national and personal health and well being. Our farms, as already mentioned in the aggregate, will produce about 1½ pounds per capita this year. The difference measures our agricultural opportunities solely in terms of honey revenue. Add to this the importance of having bees to pollinate crops which must depend on these little workers, and we find reasons multiplied to almost fantastic proportions in favor of increasing bees many times during the next few years.

The first factor is knowledge of the business. The next is active embarkation into the business on a small, self-educating scale. Winter is the best time of year for the first step; spring for the second.

One of the basic rules for success with these natives of tropical Africa is regularity of temperature, humidity, light and watering. Although they can stand the low 70s—the temperature of most heated winter rooms—these violets do not like it below 60 or above 80, and if the temperature varies too much between these they will languish. They cannot put on or remove a sweater as humans do.

Sufficient humidity in the air and water at their roots is very important. One way of obtaining both is to have the pots set in a tray of pebbles or sand which is always kept wet. Most growers advise watering from the bottom to avoid crown rot.

AFRICAN VIOLET NEEDS REGULAR CARE IN WINTER

African violets have become one of the most popular house plants during the last two decades. The true cause of such rapidly growing interest is not certain, but part of it is no doubt due to the fact that they are one of the few flowering house plants which will stand a north window and can also bear the high temperatures prevalent in city apartments and houses of today.

Another trait which has led to their increasing popularity is the ease with which they may be propagated, not only by commercial growers, but by the home window-gardener. Mature, healthy leaves, cut off with a sharp knife in mid-winter, will root readily in sand. A glass jar set over these leaf cuttings helps to keep the moisture even, aiding the root development process, but this is not absolutely necessary.

Some people have tremendous success with African violets, with apparently little effort; others never seem to be able to find the right answer to proper care, and plants covered with bloom when obtained from the florist soon appear to grow nothing but leaves, and in some cases not even these appear healthy.

Regularity the Key
One of the basic rules for success with these natives of tropical Africa is regularity of temperature, humidity, light and watering.

Although they can stand the low 70s—the temperature of most heated winter rooms—these violets do not like it below 60 or above 80, and if the temperature varies too much between these they will languish. They cannot put on or remove a sweater as humans do.

Foxgloves Require Winter Protection

Foxgloves generally are most beautiful in sections where they are covered during most of the winter with a good layer of snow. Where winters are rather open they must have a winter cover of evergreen boughs to shield them against the sun and reduce alternate thawing and freezing to a minimum.

Because winter moisture is especially harmful, use a pane of glass supported on two bricks to reduce its effect, and place the boughs above the pane. Under this arrangement the little plants will have the air circulation they need. Make sure that the glass is held high enough so that the leaves will not touch it, as otherwise they will freeze and collapse.

PRICE CONTROL, RATION RETURN PROSPECTS DIM

By JAMES MARLOW
Washington, Nov. 18 (AP)—The whole business of price and wage controls and rationing is now neck-deep in politics.
Don't expect their return. The chance is very dim. But they probably will be one of the main issues in the 1948 elections of next November.
President Truman asked Congress for power to use those controls again if, and when, he thinks they're needed to cope with living costs.
The Republican-controlled Congress would have to pass a law to give that power to Mr. Truman, who probably will be the Democratic candidate for President next year.
But the two most powerful Republican leaders in Congress have denounced the whole idea.
They're Senator Taft of Ohio, who wants to be the Republican candidate for President, and Rep. Martin of Massachusetts, speaker of the House.

Costs Still Rising
Since the summer of 1946, when OPA began to collapse under the battering of Congress, living costs have risen 23 per cent and still are rising.
OPA, with its price controls and rationing, died in the fall of 1946.
Mr. Truman said it would take months to start the controls working, because of the need to set up agencies, if Congress gave him the power now.

Since he thinks that would take months—and since Congress would argue for months before giving him the controls, if it ever did—it seems impossible there could be any controls anyway before next spring.
And this is where the politics come in:

Suppose the Republican-controlled Congress refuses the President's request—as it seems sure to do—and living costs get out of hand.

Campaign Ammunition
In the 1948 political campaign Mr. Truman will be able to tell the voters:
"I asked Congress for power to control living costs but the Republicans wouldn't give it to me. Blame the Republicans."

Then the Republicans will have to explain why they didn't let him have the controls. Mr. Truman doesn't stand to lose much by his request.

But Senator Taft made it clear last night that he's sharply aware of the political importance of all this.

He said that, from a political standpoint, it might be better for Congress to let Mr. Truman have the controls he asks because the public would get mad at the President.

But the senator said such controls in peacetime would mean a "police state" and he wants no part of it.

PHILA. ADDS 22 CARS TO TRAIN

Philadelphia, Nov. 18 (AP)—While the Freedom train moved into Reading, the Friendship train left Pennsylvania on the final leg of its food-gathering mission that started in Los Angeles 10 days ago.

The two trains crossed paths briefly yesterday at Harrisburg before the Friendship Train—one section of three collecting food for Europe's hungry—passed on through Lancaster and into Philadelphia.

Twenty-two carloads of dried beans, canned goods and flour were added to the train at Philadelphia—a record for any city area—before it continued on to pick up 15 more cars at Trenton, N. J., today and reach New York later this afternoon.

At the ceremony marking the arrival of the Friendship Train here yesterday, Lt. Gov. Daniel B. Strickler, representing Governor James H. Duff, declared it was fitting that a record number of cars be added to the train here because "this is the city of brotherly love, where friendship is a real basis of community life."

Mayor Bernard Samuel of Philadelphia said the train "answers the Biblical question 'am I my brother's keeper?' in no uncertain terms."

Meanwhile, a second section of the Friendship Train had moved through Pennsylvania earlier and waited shipment at New York while the third section passed through New York state on its way to New York city.

Gets Life Term For Slaying Wife

Philadelphia, Nov. 18 (AP)—Refused a new trial requested by his attorney, George T. Gallagher, 38, one-time seaman, was sentenced to life imprisonment for the fatal shooting of his wife, Florence, in their home last May 24.

Judge Joseph L. Kun, in refusing the request for a new trial, said yesterday the case was not one of first degree murder. However, Judge Kun sentenced Gallagher with the recommendation that he be released after serving the minimum required for a second degree verdict, which is 10 years.

GROUP REPLIES TO JUDGE MAXEY

Philadelphia, Nov. 18 (AP)—A group of municipal officials has taken issue with the criticism of the recently-enacted school district tax law as expressed by Chief Justice George W. Maxey of the state supreme court.

The officials, in a letter sent to Chief Justice Maxey yesterday, said: "We wish to say that we do not think your remarks were based upon a knowledge of the facts. The act was passed so that the various municipalities might raise sufficient funds to meet the legitimate demands of their citizens for adequate services, without throwing the burden on real estate which is already over taxed."

"Surely upon thinking the matter over, you will agree that it is better to raise the money at home where the tax levies are controlled by the people than it is to surrender that local government which is the basis of our American system and a tower of strength against Communism."

Chief Justice Maxey, in ruling recently on a test case involving the tax law which was passed at the last state legislative session, called the measure "oppressive" and "unwise," and by inference an invitation to Communism.

The letter was signed by T. P. Christwate of Hanover, president of the Pennsylvania state association of boroughs; Walter Greenwood of Coatesville, president of the league for third class cities, and Henry C. Lamparski of Plain township, president of the state association of township commissioners.

Eight Vehicles In Mixup On Turnpike

Somerset, Pa., Nov. 18 (AP)—Four new cars, two trailer-trucks, a jeep and a coupe smashed up on the Pennsylvania turnpike 16 miles east of here last night, sending James O. Connell, 43, of Orange, N. J., to the hospital with a possible broken back.

State police reconstructed the accident something like this:
O'Connell was driving the jeep which was towing a coupe. Both vehicles overturned.

A trailer-truck, carrying a cargo of four new cars, swerved to avoid hitting the upset cars, turned over and caught fire. All of the cars and the truck were destroyed by flames although the truck driver, Duane Rankin of New Castle, Pa., escaped without injury.

Hope Tariff Slash Will Aid US Public

Washington, Nov. 18 (AP)—The government hoped today like its wholesale tariff slashes set for January 1 will save Americans money without arousing a storm among industries left with less protection against foreign competition.

Under terms of the Geneva trade and tariff agreement made public last night, this country will make more than 3,500 cuts in import duties as part of a 23-nation pact affecting half of the world's commerce.

"The general effect should be to ease the burden of the consumer—we hope for a substantial benefit," said one State department official commenting on prospects for lower prices.

At least one such result—a drop of 30 cents a "fifth" bottle in the retail price of Scotch and Canadian whisky—was forecast by the National Association of Alcoholic Beverage Importers.

DATE BOOK OF PRINCESS IS JAMMED TODAY

By GLENN WILLIAMS

London, Nov. 18 (AP)—Parties and a host of personal details jammed Princess Elizabeth's date book today, insistently claiming the rushing hours before she weds handsome Lieut. Philip Mountbatten on Thursday.

But in all the final frenzy of preparation the 21-year-old princess, presumptive to the British throne, frolicked until the wee hours this morning, whirling around the white and gold music room of Buckingham palace time after time in Philip's arms.

Both her impish-eyed younger sister Margaret and young King Mihai of Romania were there, too, among the princes and princesses and young nobles at the royal party for the "under thirty-five's."

Party And Reception

Elizabeth was up early today, however, giving final touches to details of the wedding ceremony—details to which she has already given such care as picking out the notes of a tune for the singing of the Twenty-third Psalm at the wedding. Later she planned to receive the Minister of Transjordan, bearing a gift from his country.

Another big party was planned to view the assembly of wedding gifts this afternoon, and tonight more than 1,000 guests have been bidden to the palace for a great reception.

Crowds Stand Outside

"Already the pressure of events was crowding the datebook too full and Mountbatten was to go alone this afternoon to stand godfather to the son of Lord and Lady Brabourne—a ceremony which Elizabeth also had planned to attend but had to cancel. While the dancing went on last

Uninjured After Being Buried Alive

Mifflintown, Pa., Nov. 18 (AP)—Warren R. Hower, 25, of Mifflintown, was little the worse for wear today after being buried alive for more than three minutes under a ton of earth.

The accident occurred yesterday when Hower, a filling station employe, jumped into a hole alongside a newly-placed 6,600-gallon gasoline storage tank to retrieve a measuring tape before covering the tank with earth.

The earthen wall of the pit, loosened by rains, toppled in on Hower as he bent over to pick up the tape, burying him under nearly three feet of earth.

Four workmen, witnessing the accident, succeeded after three minutes of frantic shoveling in uncovering Hower's head so that he could breathe, and after a half hour managed to extricate his body.

He was taken to the hospital at nearby Lewistown where attendants reported he suffered no injuries.

TO STUDY MILK PRICES

New York, Nov. 18 (AP)—Appointment of a technical committee to study factors affecting the farm price of fluid class 1-A milk produced for the New York marketing area was announced today by C. J. Blanford, market administrator. The committee includes: W. L. Barr and C. W. Pierce, Pennsylvania State college.

night, crowds of Britons gathered outside the palace, hearing the strains of music from one of London's society bands and hoping the happy princess and her fiancé would step upon the balcony.

But only the dancing silhouettes whirled on the second floor.

Outside Westminster Abbey, too, crowds gathered, but there was only the crescendo of carpenter's hammers and one flash of brilliance as lights for televising the recession blinked a test.

HUNTING SEASON TOLL NOW IS SIX

Harrisburg, Nov. 18 (AP)—Pennsylvania's 1947 hunting fatality toll stood at six today as the opening of six-day bear season yesterday claimed an additional life.

The latest hunting accident victim was Thomas Reynolds, 48, Johnstown city policeman, who was shot in the Potter county mountains near Coudersport.

Frederick Curry, 32, Johnstown steel worker, and a member of the same hunting party, was arraigned a short time later at Coudersport on a charge of killing a human being in mistake for game, a violation of the hunting code.

Meanwhile, estimates of the bear kill around this state on the opening day were unavailable but the state game commission said close to 3,000 bruins were roaming the mountain sections as legal prey to some 200,000 hunters.

The state "bear hunting championship" for opening day was claimed by three Berks county hunters who spent three hours hunting in the Sullivan county mountains and returned with two bears after firing three shots.

George F. Keener, of Strausstown, fired one shot to get a 125-pound bear, while two brothers, Calvin L. and Floyd Franks, each fired a shot to get a second bear weighing 250 pounds.

ASKS MILK PRICE RAISE

Syracuse, N. Y., Nov. 16 (AP)—The Eastern Milk producers Bargaining Agency says the price to producers for Class 1-A (fluid) milk should be pegged at $5.68 a hundredweight for the first three months of 1948. General Manager Russell E. Spaulding said yesterday the demand would be presented tomorrow at a dairy men's hearing in New York city. This would be 22 cents higher than the present price.

ARREST YOUTHS FOR ROBBERY OF MAN WHO DIED

York, Pa., Nov. 18 (AP) — Two youths were being held in York county jail today on charges of robbing Eugene Hardesty, New Brighton, whose body was found along a rural road near here November 9.

District Attorney Harold Rudisill announced last night the youths who he identified as Mervin E. Reisinger, 19, and Ervin Beck, 21, both of York, have signed statements admitting robbing the 41-year-old ceramics engineer before his death.

Drowning Confirmed
At the same time, Rudisill said an official investigation into the death has confirmed a coroner's finding that Hardesty died by drowning. The coroner, Lester G. Sell, issued the drowning certificate after an autopsy showed the dead man's lungs were filled with water. The district attorney said the youths told him this story of the robbery:

They saw Hardesty sitting on some steps while driving along a street here Friday night, November 7. They offered him a ride and then took him into the rural section. When he got out of the car they took a check book and other articles from the pockets of his suit coat which he had taken off. They found no money.

They then put the coat back on him and drove off, leaving him standing along the road.

Rudisill said Hardesty then apparently had laid down along side the road and fallen asleep. He added that he had been treated earlier at a hospital here for an overdose of sleeping tablets and was probably still groggy. The district attorney had pointed out previously that drowning could have occurred by rain entering Hardesty's open mouth if he was lying upward on the ground since it rained considerably that night.

Washington, Nov. 18 (P)—ANGRY Republicans today marked for almost certain death in Congress President Truman's plea for standby power to invoke limited price-wage controls and rationing. Led by Senator Taft of Ohio, an avowed Presidential aspirant, and House Speaker Martin of Massachusetts, GOP legislators launched such a bitter attack on these two of the President's 10 cost of living proposals that they appeared certain to become top issues in the 1948 political campaign.

Taft, replying to the President by radio eight and one half hours after Mr. Truman addressed a joint session of Congress yesterday, sounded this Republican battle cry: "This is the police state condemned by the President himself only a month ago. This is the end of economic freedom."

Asked Old Authority

In his message to the lawmakers Mr. Truman summoned back into special session to vote aid for Europe and try to check rising prices at home, the President asked for immediate authority to allocate scarce commodities, control exports, tighten credit and impose other inflation curbs.

Back of these he asked for power to clamp down with "selective" price and wage controls, together with rationing, if he found such steps necessary to keep essential living costs in check.

(At a news conference October 16, Mr. Truman told reporters in response to questions that controls, including those over rents, represent police state methods even in wartime. He added that such methods sometimes must be used in an emergency and that in this country they are used through the will of the people rather than that of one man.)

Other GOP Attacks

Taft said there "will never be a time when an emergency cannot be summoned up" and demanded to know whether this country should abandon its philosophy of freedom "for the police state methods which have brought the rest of the world as seekers for charity at our door."

Even before Taft, who heads the Senate Republican policy committee as well as the Senate-House Economic committee, tore into the President's program, other GOP leaders voiced their own sharp criticisms.

Martin told reporters Mr. Truman was asking for "a more colossal OPA" and added the economic program has little chance for enactment during the special session.

Some Democrats Join

House Republican leader Halleck of Indiana said the President had asked Congress "to grant him dictatorial powers."

Even Democratic Senators Elmer Thomas of Oklahoma and Byrd of Virginia said the program spells "regimentation."

Taft charged that "political strategy" was involved in Mr. Truman's speech. Declaring that the President's proposals represent a "final surrender to the left wing," the Ohio Senator added:

"We stand at the crossroads today between a free America and a planned economy. This is the last stand of the planners who think they know how to run the people's affairs better than the people can know themselves."

CALL HEARINGS ON MILK PRICE

Harrisburg, Nov. 18 (P)—The state milk control commission called three hearings for early December to consider the question of continuing present retail prices of 20 cents a quart in southeastern Pennsylvania after January 1.

All three milk marketing areas are now operating under seasonal milk orders which provide for a cent a quart reduction in price on Jan. 1, and a cut to 18 cents a quart three months later, with corresponding decreases in minimums for producers.

Milk Commission Chairman H. N. Cobb announced yesterday the hearings will be held at Lancaster, Dec. 8; Philadelphia City Hall, Dec. 9, and Norristown, Dec. 11. He said the hearings were requested by the Interstate Milk Producers cooperative.

"The milk control commission invites all interested parties to be present at these hearings and to present testimony that will be pertinent to the welfare of the dairy industry and Pennsylvania consumers," Cobb stated.

The interstate producers, a farmer organization, recently told the commission at a conference on proposed seasonal price order for the Johnstown-Altoona area, which was subsequently dropped, that if feed prices continue to rise it would ask for a change in the seasonal orders now in effect in the Philadelphia, Philadelphia suburban and Lancaster marketing areas.

ELEPHANTINE PROBLEMS

Pittsburgh, Nov. 18 (P)—What to do with three tons of dead elephant was the problem confronting officials at Highland Park zoo today. Gloria, 48-year-old Indian pachyderm, died Sunday and her body was loaded on a truck in the zoo grounds. Officials asked refractory and smelting firms to contract for her incineration. There were no takers.

gram, Taft said the way to control the cost of living is to slash government expenses, cut taxes, curtail private credit, control exports and modify the cost of the long-range Marshall Plan for economic recovery of Europe.
